|--------------|--|
| 2002–present | Research Investigator, Program for Improving Health Care Decisions, Division of General Medicine, University of Michigan, and Department of Veterans Affairs, Health Services Research and Development, Ann Arbor, MI. |
| 2000 – 2002 | Health Science Research Specialist, Department of Veterans Affairs, Health Services Research and Development, Ann Arbor, MI. Duties include data management and analysis; also authoring conference presentations and collaborating on written manuscripts. Multiple projects seek to assess the validity of measures of quality of medical care, and to assess the relationships between quality of care, interpersonal factors between medical staff and patients, and patient satisfaction. |
| 1998 - 2000 | Project Director, AIDS Volunteerism Project (Allen Omoto and Mark Snyder, Principal Investigators) at the University of Kansas (supported by a grant from the National Institutes of Mental Health). Duties included planning and coordination of data collection for longitudinal studies in the field (with the cooperation of AIDS service organizations) and in the laboratory, data analysis, writing manuscripts, conference presentations, grant preparation, and supervision of research assistants. |

1993 - 1996 Research Assistant to Dr. Steve Neuberg, P.I.,
“Social Goals as Moderators of Self-fulfilling Prophecies” (supported by a grant from the National Institutes of Mental Health). Duties included planning and designing experiments as part of a large research program, preparation of stimulus materials, supervision and training of a team of undergraduate research assistants, and the collection, management, and analysis of data. In addition, I had primary responsibility for a large research project, completed in Sep.1996. These responsibilities included collection of data, design and implementation of coding schemes, data analysis, as well as writing and revising a published manuscript.
